Added to that are a complete new set of animations, on-pitch sounds, and a deeper connection to the pitch for all-important moments and actions - including the use of the new HyperMotion Technology. This new feature is the result of a year-long effort by FIFA's AI engineers and our world-class artists and animators. The FIFA Team has been working with the studio and our fans to collect the most realistic player movement data from real-life high-intensity football matches, as well as create a comprehensive set of new animations for different scenarios. HyperMotion Technology creates an immediate, more connected experience for players, and is designed to enhance the dynamics and excitement of your favourite competitive match. Through the manipulation of player actions, the introduction of new animations and tactile sensations, game developers will be able to enhance player performance, motion, and skill, as well as deliver more accurate and even surfaces. This will go a long way in helping us achieve our goal of making the feel of the ball as real as possible.
